

Growing up is rarely done in a straight line.

Child and Youth Care workers study and understand human development. They know physical, emotional and intellectual maturity can take deep turns, halt or even become arrested. Through insight and just being there to encourage baby steps they attempt to provide the conditions needed to promote healthy growth.

CYCCanada.ca

Garth Goodwin for the Council of Canadian Child and Youth Care Associations