

Suicide IS kid's stuff.

Youth at risk idealize and commit suicide far too often. Northern isolation, sexual confusion and sexual abuse, among other reasons, all claim young lives every year. Young people can appear fine yet have intensely emotional perceptions of the world around them. Child and Youth Care workers are trained to notice the signs and to address the despair by engaging youth in a relationship leading to a more positive worldview.

Garth Goodwin for the Council of Canadian Child and Youth Care Associations