

Identity can be more than a tag.

Children and young people crave attention from adult caregivers. They really want to be somebody. Too often they simply get to be and turn to extreme fashion, activities and behaviors to forge an identity. Child and Youth Care workers understand the importance of noticing, positive praise, understanding choice and patience while young people define themselves.

CYCCanada.ca

Garth Goodwin for the Council of Canadian Child and Youth Care Associations