

Teamwork gets the job done.

Child and Youth Care work is work and at its most essential – teamwork. The job is often complex, often literally at the frontier of a young person’s life and future happiness. Your role is to be a member of a team, looking out for a partner’s back at one level, handing a shift off to a new team with clear information at another and finally contributing to a large system of professionals and authorities, all working for the best outcome for a young person.
